by carol angrisani

AS CONSUMER PACKAGED GOODS MANUFACTURERS get more comfortable with Internet coupons, many are exploring more sophisticated ways to use them, like linking them to online surveys, rewards programs, targeted e-mail newsletters and retail frequent-shopper programs.
"We want to be where our consumers are," said Rose Grabowski, vice president, value development, Mott's, which recently beefed up its online coupon program.

New Service Gives Shoppers On-the-Spot Savings at Checkout Lanes In More Than 10,000 Stores Nationwide

SUNNYVALE, Calif., Sept. 21 /PRNewswire/ -- ShoppingList.com, the premier Internet site focused on helping consumers find sales in real world stores, today announced that it has teamed up with SuperMarkets Online, Inc., the online subsidiary of Catalina Marketing Corporation (NYSE: POS), to offer ShoppingList.com users grocery store savings through the ValuPage (SM) service. "This alliance between ShoppingList.com and the ValuPage service strengthens the premise that using the Internet on behalf of brick and mortar retailers is a powerful consumer proposition," said Will H. Gardenswartz, senior vice president of marketing and business development for SuperMarkets Online. "We are pleased to add the functionality of ShoppingList.com to the ValuPage site, as well as adding ValuPage to the ShoppingList.com site. This aligns well with our strategy of providing value to the grocery store shopper, while also delivering a pre-qualified base of purchase-ready consumers to a wide variety of retailers and manufacturers."

The ValuPage service uses a bar code that, when printed out and presented along with promoted items at the checkout counter of participating stores, issues Web Bucks(R) to the customer. Web Bucks are cash rewards that may be used for nearly any purchase during the customer's next visit to the store. Users do not need to register or download any software in order to print their ValuPage for redemption in participating stores. Each week, ShoppingList.com visitors can save an average of more than $40.00 on a full gamut of grocery store items, from cereal to canned goods, diapers to pet food. The service is immediately available from the ShoppingList.com site (www.ShoppingList.com).

"ValuPage is a superb addition to our coupon offerings," said Chao Lam, president and CEO of ShoppingList.com. "We've been extremely gratified by our visitors' response to the coupon segment of our site. It validates what we know is a dominant segment of Internet usage. Studies show that people are overwhelmingly using the Internet to find information that they then apply to their buying decisions in physical stores. Coupons are an excellent means to provide true benefits to the consumers, and at the same time support retailers and manufacturers in their efforts to encourage product trial and build brand loyalty."
